THERAPIST OFFERS CONSULTATION

Miss Chris Acree, speech therapist for the Appomattox county public school system, has offered her services as a consultant to talk with anyone (child or adult) who thinks he or she has a speech or hearing problem.

Miss Acree is making the offer as her contribution to an all-out effort by many local people to publicize the Speech & Hearing Clinic at Va. Baptist Hospital, a clinic available to Appomattox County people. This clinic offers comprehensive testing and treatment for speech and hearing problems.

Currently, a drive is on to raise $3,000 in Appomattox to buy equipment for the clinic. Dr. J. A. Mathews is chairman of the Speech-Hearing Committee.

With Christmas only about eight weeks away, many people are already planning for the festive holidays ahead. The Central Virginia Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association in preparing for the Christmas season has mailed out over 62,500 letters with Christmas seals to residents of Amelia, Amherst, Appomattox, Buckingham, Campbell, Charlotte, Cumberland, Lunenburg, Nottoway, Powhatan, and Prince Edward Counties and the city of Lynchburg.

Christmas seals are a symbol of health and good wishes for the holiday season. They are a reminder that there is more to do in the fight against tuberculosis and respiratory diseases. Dr. Anthony J. Munoz, President of CVTRDA, asks the citizens in the area to USE CHRISTMAS SEALS on all letters and packages this Christmas to remind others there is more to do.

Christmas seals fight emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and air pollution; and only through contributions for Christmas seals can the work continue to eliminate these hazards to our very existance.

Community College Seeks Accreditation Extension

An 18-month self-study program to seek a 10-year extension of its accreditation with the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges has been launched by the Central Virginia Community College.

The area college was initially granted accreditation in 1969. Then it was given four years to do a self-study for accreditation reaffirmation.

James A. Pierce, assistant professor of business management and head of the steering committee for the study, said the analysis of the college's facilities and program is probably the most important task college personnel has ever undertaken.

He said the self-study will wind up in the spring of 1973, when an out-of-state committee appointed by the accrediting association will visit the college's campus.

Pierce said nine college study committees, with a maximum membership of eight on each, will look into the scope of the college's function in the community, evaluate organization and administration, study academic programs and financial resources, appraise the college faculty, library and student personnel and evaluate its physical plant and special activities program.

This will be the second intensive study the college has made in preparation for accreditation requirements. In 1970 it published its Educational Master Plan, outlining student enrollment projections and educational and plant needs over the 10-year period ending in 1980.

Pierce said the study now under way will be even more exhaustive, with in-depth analysis of the major areas conducted by faculty chairmen and faculty members, students, local board members and ex officio administrative members.

He said the study will serve two basic purposes. First, it will determine whether the college is abiding by the standards set by its accrediting agency. And secondly, it will determine the ability of the administration and faculty to provide a quality educational program tailored to community needs and the college's academic purposes with the plant facilities and finances that will be available for the period under study.

Pierce said the teams of committeemen will be looking into "every nook and cranny" of the school to determine also whether the college meets obligations outlined by the board of governors of the Virginia Community College System.

While the analysis portion of the study began only recently, Pierce said it follows an intensive battery of questionaires filled out by personnel during the summer.

Pierce said the study will deal with such questions as how to meet the needs of a quickly expanding enrollment that reached 1,700 students this fall. The college has a capacity of approximately 500 full-time students or their equivalent had 1,150 full-time equivalents this fall.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTIST
Rufus B. McDannell, Pastor
Sabbath School Lesson No. 6 for Nov. 6, 1971
Subject: Making Spiritual Values Relevant
Scripture Key Text -" And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent." John 17:3.
God wants us to know Him. That is why He desires to live with us and in us. He is the source of all life, has three dwelling places: Heaven is His throne, the earth is the universe (Ps. 103:19); a church is His home and dedicated to God is His sanctuary where He can meet with His people (Ex. 25:8) but the human body enables Him to have a daily, personal touch with each individual (1 Cor. 3:16,17). Spiritual things are conceived in the mind. "The brain nerve which communicate with the entire system are the only medium through which Heaven can communicate to man and affect his inmost life." Ministry of Healing, Vol. 5, p. 347. We think about what we see, hear, taste, smell and feel. "All should guard the senses, lest Satan gain victory over them; for they are the avenues to the soul." Ibid, Vol. 3, p. 507.
How to Live, Christ must live in me. Col. 1:27. If Christ is in me, I will be a delightful person in the home. All my faculties will be used to enrich and benefit others. I think of my rights, my needs, my desires, the less I will think of Christ. The less I think of Him, the more selfish I become. Selfishness cuts off my connection with the source of life. Rom. 8:6.
Lesson Outline - 1. The Mind. Prov. 23:7, 2. The Sense of Sight. 2 Cor. 3:18, 3. The Sense of Hearing. Luke 8:17, 18, 4. The Sense of Taste. Ps. 19:25, 5. The Sense of Smell, Ps. 45:8, 6. The Sense of Touch, Luke 15: 20. The wise man Solomon warns that we should not allow our thoughts to run riot, but be restrained, brought into captivity to the obedience of Christ. "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." The Christian home will be attractive, and will create a love for the beautiful." God loves the beautiful . . . He desires us to surround our homes with the beauty of natural things". -The Ministry of Healing, p. 370. The facial expression reveals our emotions. That smile on the face says plainly, "Christ is in the heart." How important is it that we place a close watch on our conversations?" Let only pleasant words be spoken by parents to their children, and respectful words by children to their parents. Attention must be given to these things in the home life." -The Adventist Home, page 437 (Read Matt. 12:34 also Matt. 12:37) "Let mealtime be a cheerful happy time. As we enjoy the gifts of God, let us respond by grateful praise to the Giver . . . The Ministry of Healing, p. 385 (Read Prov. 17:2) "Cleanliness, neatness, and order are indispensable to the proper management of the household . . . "Cleanliness must extend to their dress, and to everything in the home." The sweetest way to expressing love is through the sense of touch. Read the story of "The Prodigal Son" in St. Luke, chapter 15.
Prayer Meeting will be held in the homes of our members from Oct. 30 through Nov. 6.
